If this does not work, contact your seller, probably you need to format your hard disk to get rid of the malware. Try These First Problems in computers can happen due to malfunctioning of program or due to the Windows operating system itself. Right click on the taskbar and select "Task Manager". If you do not know what is happening avoid browsing with your computer. Alternatively, you can find the executable file for the adware and uninstall or delete to get rid of the ads. First, terminate the power supply and remove the CPU cover box to check the small fan mounted on it. Now, let us dive in to frequently facing computer problems. Good example is facing security problems when viewing websites in browser. Anything could cause problems like your computer, router, modem, browser or your ISP. Launching too many applications when booting the computer will ultimately increase the starting time. In this article, we will explain some common computer problems you face with possible solutions. They can confirm the problems from the server and router side.At the same time, make sure your computer is running within the Wi-Fi connection area. For example, you need Adobe Acrobat Reader for opening PDF files. Contact your ISP, if you find the internet connection is slower than expected.If the speed is good, check the size of the file you are downloading. My Old Program is Not Working on New Computer Microsoft has different Windows versions and releases updates frequently. 10. For example, you may only need Word, Excel and Outlook instead of using entire Microsoft Office package that includes OneNote and Access.Check your antivirus and firewall - these programs scan each activity and slow down the computer. The security certificates of websites have a validity and your computer will validate it with the system clock time. Close and reopen the application. The certificate will not work, in case if your clock is not working or having different time. Here you can view and close any program running on your computer. Therefore, you have to check and confirm the root cause of the problem before acting to resolve it. This means that an unwanted program called Adware is sitting on your computer. However, programs running on a 64-bit system will not work on a 32-bit system. Right click on the Wi-Fi icon on the taskbar and choose "Troubleshoot problems" option.Windows will run the network diagnostics and help you to find the problem in your computer.If there are no issues in your computer, then contact your Internet Service Provider (ISP) for help. If you are not using a program for 6 months, consider whether you really need for daily use. If the computer is under warranty, do not hesitate to contact your seller to fix the problems. Though, these advertisements are of no harm they will annoy you popping up unexpectedly. Generally, third-party sellers install their own adware programs on their customer's laptops. Always, make sure you have sufficient space in the Windows installation disk. You can test by downloading files from different websites to find the problem comes from your computer or from the website's server.Internet connection speed is another factor you should check. In extreme case, hackers may hijack your computer and take control of the activities. In most cases, you have to upgrade the system or replace if upgrading cost you more money. If that is not possible, you will have no other option to find alternate program or check with the developer to get an update. In general, you have to update the program to the latest version so that it is compatible with your Windows version. Easy way to find this issue is to disable your antivirus, firewall protection, and check the computer operations.Slow at startup - many users wrongly choose the option to launch the app at startup. Whatsoever is the reason below three tips would resolve most of the common computer problems. No matter whether you have a brand new Windows 10 laptop or an old Windows 7/8 PC that your dad used, there are some problems you will face with all kinds of computers. It will be annoying, if your computer restarts unexpectedly when you are doing some important task. 9. Make sure your computer's graphics card, motherboard, and network card are updated with latest drivers.Check whether your computer is infected with virus, malware or adware.Your motherboard may be hot triggering the restart. Make sure you have correct time showing in the clock so that the validations work properly. Best example is to delete high-resolution graphics games and big applications like Photoshop or Microsoft Office. Check the file extension of your attachment and make sure you have an associated app to open such files. For example, programs running on a 32-bit system can work on 64-bit system. In order to remove this, run a special antivirus package and scan all the files on your computer. Also, make sure to disable "Use Printer Offline" option to avoid the documents not being printed. It is also a good idea to find alternatively. Insufficient space may cause crashing of other applications and Windows OS. Unless you need to launch the program at startup, disable all unnecessary apps to speed up the initial starting time when booting. It could be due to outdated software or hardware problem. Slow internet connection obviously need long time for file downloads. Low Disk Space Many users do not understand the need of having sufficient disk space and install big programs leaving few MB size in C drive. Pop-up Ads on Unexpected Occasions Did you notice advertisements are popping up even when your browser is not running? Disconnect from internet and run an antivirus program to delete the malware programs. 4. This will help programs to use the needed space in runtime.
